May 16 Ceremony

An afternoon ceremony in Brentwood's Sluggett Memorial Baptist Church on May 16 will unite in marriage Miss Ann Dickens, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Dickens and Mr. William J. Greenhalgh, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Greenhalgh, Tomlinson Road, Saanichton, B.C. Pastor T. L. Wescott will officiate.—(Campbell Studios.)

Henderson-Coulter

Bride Designed Wedding Gowns

A pretty wedding was made even more attractive as the bride and attendants were gowned in dresses designed by the bride herself.

Rev. Douglas B. Carr united in a double-ring ceremony at Centennial United Church, Cresel Janet Doris Coulter and James Arthur Henderson, both of Victoria.

The dark-haired bride chose soft pink lace over white satin for her gown with a floating overlay of nylon organdy and a cowl neckline appliqued with flowers. Her bouquet was red and white roses and she wore a small headdress of pink and white to match the dress.

For her attendants, she chose taffeta gowns in shades of light blue with headdresses and bouquets of white carnations and pink roses. They were Mrs. Alice Redlic and Mrs. Norah Roleston.

Best man was Mr. Gordon Roleston and ushers were Mr. Ken Buchanan and Mr. Rick McVie.

The couple spent 10 days in California before returning to their home at 3125 Stevenson Place.

LOVELIER YOU

ROUTINE FOR WEAK FEET

You can tell by a woman's gingerly step and pained expression that her feet hurt. Dead giveaways both, and not necessarily due to foolish footwear.

Weak feet are often the cause. Weak feet tire quickly and then begin to ache. However well-fitted, every shoe hurts.

Those who suffer the condition can find temporary relief from pain with a hot Epsom Salts soak, followed by a massage with icy rubbing alcohol. Before donning stockings and shoes, applications of foot lotions and powders help to keep the feet happy for longer periods.

The measure that gives permanent results, however, is strengthening the foot muscles. This can be done, and most effectively, with these routines: 1. Barefoot, sit with knees crossed. "Count" with the toes of elevated foot — point each downward in turn. At first, some may not budge, but practice limbers them until they race along.

2. Stretch elevated foot downward, clench toes and hold. Then stretch foot upward, hold and relax. Repeat 10 times, recross knees and work with the other foot.

TRIMMERS AND SLIMMERS

Let me help you with the problem of a too-fleshy arm, chest or upper back by sending you my leaflet, Trimmers and Slimmers. It contains a set of co-ordinated spot reducing exercises—easy to do, quick to get results. Just write me in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 5 cents in coin to cover handling.

Cancer Symptons

The seven symptoms that may indicate cancer are:

1. Unusual bleeding or discharge.
2. A lump or thickening of the breast or elsewhere.
3. A sore that does not heal.
4. Persistent changes in bowel or bladder habits.
5. Persistent hoarseness or cough.
6. Persistent indigestion or difficulty in swallowing.
7. Change in a wart or mole.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My older sister is being married in six weeks. We've only lived in this town two years and don't know many people. Her fiance is from a city 2,500 miles away. He can't get anyone to come such a distance to stand up for him, so he's asked my sister to choose a best man.

She travels for a comestic firm and away all week, so she's asked me to select somebody. The only prospect is a cousin who lives 40 miles from here. But he's going to play the violin, so he's out.

Now here's the big question: A certain fellow I keep seeing at the bus stop would be ideal. He's tall, good-looking and a neat dresser. The trouble is, I don't know him, except to say good morning to. This might be a good way to get better acquainted, but I'd hate to have him think I'm nuts.

Would it be a mistake to ask him? I know it would be "unusual," but would it be crazy?—JANET.

Dear Janet: Don't ask him. He might faint from the shock and miss the bus.

Suggest that your sister hire a stranger to play the violin and invite the cousin to be her fiance's best man. This makes a great deal more sense than accosting a stranger on the street and inviting him to occupy a place of honor at a family wedding.

'Don't Push,' He Says

Dear Ann: I'm in the fifth year of my second marriage. My husband is good to me and my 10-year-old daughter. But something is worrying me and I must have peace of mind or I'll have a nervous breakdown.

My husband refused to adopt my daughter when we were married. I brought it up many times but his answer was always the same, "Don't push me." Now, I've come to the conclusion he'll never adopt her and I'm a wreck worrying about what will become of my child if something should happen to me. What can I do to make sure she will be provided for and not be placed in an orphanage?—NATALIE.

Dear Natalie: Do you honestly believe your daughter would be placed in an orphanage if something happened to you? If you have no more confidence in your husband than this, arrange with a relative (aunt, sister, cousin, in-law) or a close friend, to take the girl in case of your death.

Make certain your daughter is the beneficiary of your insurance policy. If you don't have one, get one. It will give you the peace of mind you've been searching for.

It Seems Unjust

Dear Ann Landers: I'll be 20 years old in three weeks. For the last two years I've been working and supporting myself. A wonderful opportunity to advance in my job has been offered to me, but it means moving to a city 200 miles away. The offer includes a place to live.

My mother and dad told me I can't leave home until I am 21. They bought a new house last year and the $100 a month I've been giving them for room and board, has come in mighty handy.

Are they right? They say it's the law and they will use it, if they have to. Please help me. I don't know anything about such matters. It seems very unjust—Brenda D.

Dear Brenda: In the majority of states, 18 is recognized as the legal age for girls, and 21 for boys. In some states, it is 21 for both.

You can get this information in any public library. Ask the librarian to help you. And I hope it's 18 in your state, Toots. It doesn't sound very good at your house.

Confidential to Target: Tell the old lecher you're too tired to ride in a taxi with him and you'd rather walk.

Confidential to Star-Eyes: Of course he doesn't want to get out of your life. Why should he? He's having a ball. Get out of his before you become a candidate for "The Old-Too-Soon, Smart-Too-Late Club."

No Chintz Curtains Says Woman Mayor

WINONA, Kan. (UPI)—Mrs. Marie Wycoff, new mayor of this western Kansas village, promised yesterday that she, her woman police judge and all-woman city council won't hang chintz curtains in the windows of the two-room city hall.

But it wouldn't surprise Winona's menfolk if they did, after what happened in the municipal elections Tuesday.

The seven women, none with any political experience, successfully waged a last-minute write-in vote campaign and ousted the seven unopposed male candidates for the city offices.

"I never saw anything like it in my life," said E. T. Huntington, editor and publisher of the weekly Winona Leader. "The town is full of characters."

"We girls got together Saturday and decided to run after several people called us and said it was time for a change," Mrs. Wycoff said.

"It's quite an honor, I think . . . but we didn't really expect to win. I shouldn't say that, should I?" she added.

The girls have no special axe to grind, Mrs. Wycoff said.

"But we've been thinking about the sewer system and cleaning up the town a bit. We also plan an addition to the school."

Some of the male candidates still can't understand how their opponents logged a 2-1 margin over them with the write-in votes, Huntington said.

"The general sentiment is in proportion to the vote," Huntington said. "This village is very happy and intends to stand behind them all the way."

Huntington said that Logan County Attorney Harry Phelps called him after hearing a rumor of the coup, and said "you don't mean that's true, do you?"
